

'Treachery' Is Laid to Disposed Soviet Leaders

By ROY ESSOYAN

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet army today accused the four deposed Kremlin leaders of treachery and of threatening to undermine the Soviet Union's defenses.

These charges appeared in Red Star, official newspaper of the Soviet Defense Ministry headed by Marshal Georgi Zhukov.

The campaign of denunciation against the quartet picked up momentum at meetings and rallies throughout the Soviet Union. Lazar Kaganovich, one of the four leaders, was singled out for new and stronger accusations which could foreshadow legal action against him.

The army and navy publicly announced their endorsement of Nikita Khrushchev in his ousting of Kaganovich, V. M. Molotov, General Malenkov and Dmitri Shapovalov from their high posts.

Red Star declared the four were guilty of "treasonable activity" aimed at "undermining the basis of the Soviet Union's defensive capacity, to shake the unity of the people and army, which could have been of benefit to the enemies of our state—the imperialists and aggressors."

The article also referred to "treacherous activities" by the four leaders.

The accusation against Kaganovich was made by Nikita K. Khrushchev, premier of the Ukrainian Republic of the U.S.S.R.

Kalchenko said Kaganovich had made "grave and unfounded accusations" against the leaders of the Ukrainian Republic. Kalchenko said this was done with Kaganovich was secretary of the Central Committee of the Ukrainian Communist party under Stalin's reign.

Marshal Zhukov, who valued into the membership of the policy-making Presidium in the Kremlin shakeup, told the Russian people the Soviet armed forces will rally solidly around the Communist party.

Holiday Death Toll Climbs to 535 Total

By The Associated Press

The pace of traffic fatalities quickened today and alarmed traffic experts pleaded that motorists across the nation redouble their care to bring the long Independence Day holiday toll back under control.

With the four-day holiday in its second day, the toll of death from traffic accidents stood at 152. Another 94 died from drowning and 28 lost their lives in miscellaneous accidents for a total of 274. There were no deaths from fireworks.

As the highway death toll increased "an alarming rate," Ned H. Dornbusch, president of the National Safety Council, urged drivers to exercise extreme caution to hold down the number of fatalities.

"We appeal to the drivers to aid traffic enforcement agencies in bringing the toll back under control by redoubling their care," he said. "The toll is increasing at an alarming rate."

Hundreds of highway accidents last night resulted in what safety officials termed "an alarming spurt" of traffic deaths as motorists packed highways homeward bound after holiday outings.

The count of dead from traffic mishaps stood at 149 today. In addition 87 died from drowning and 26 were killed in miscellaneous accidents for a total of 302. There were no deaths from fireworks.

Deaths counted in the long holiday cover the 102-hour period from 6 p. m. (local time) Wednesday to midnight Sunday.

National Safety Council experts, who had predicted 535 traffic deaths for the holiday period had been "encouraged" by the early reports as the toll appeared running a little below a nonholiday Thursday.

But with the heavy increase during the night, a council spokesman said if the pace continued, the council's estimate of 535 deaths "could be matched." The council urged drivers and enforcement agencies to work together to hold down the highway fatalities.

Late Hours Blamed for Much Delinquency Here

Wreck, Burglary Probed by Police

Police reported a very quiet July 4 holiday here. Robert Johnson, Negro, was arrested for disturbing the peace and burglary. Officers said on two counts, he admitted breaking into a house owned by Mattie Harrie and Mary Lee Johnson.

Officers also reported two hubcaps stolen from a pickup truck owned by C. R. Stuart Jr.

Only fender damage resulted in a wreck on old Highway 67 east involving cars driven by Reynold Miller of Mineral Springs and Lillie Mae Howard of Hope. Charge of failure to yield the right-of-way was filed against Lillie Mae Howard by City Police.

Palmer Family Receives Many Messages

TEXARKANA, Tex. (AP)—Messages of sympathy poured into the Texarkana Gazette today from people in all stations of life mourning the passing of dynamic C. E. Palmer.

Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.), Oliver Gramling, assistant general manager of the Associated Press, New York; U. S. Reps. Wright Patman of Texas and W. P. Norrell of Arkansas; Harlan F. Ross, president of the Marsh-Pentecost newspaper group in Texas; Rheaun Howard, publisher of the Wichita Falls newspapers, were just a few of those who expressed their sorrow at the death of the Texarkana publisher.

It was part of C. E. Palmer's character — his boundless energy and indefatigable pattern of work — that made his passing at 70 years of age a surprise and shock. His close friend and associate, J. Q. Mahaffey, editor of the Texarkana papers, summed up the death as "a sudden and unexpected loss."

C. E. Palmer in an editorial which read: "In the newspaper business we use the number '30' to denote the end of a story. This editorial is '30' for C. E. Palmer, the dynamic publisher of the Texarkana Gazette and Daily News and other Arkansas newspapers. He would want this editorial to be simple and, in his soft-spoken phrase 'no example of ornate diction'."

"He did not like flowery writing any more than he liked flowery people. He was plain, outspoken and unassuming and he did not have much patience with those who were anything else than themselves."

"It is no exaggeration to say that Mr. Palmer was a business genius. It was like a three-ring circus to watch him at his desk, wheeling and dealing at times with the intricate operations of more than a half dozen corporations."

"He operated at high speed all day long and at time into the night but there was no tension in his work. Business was his hobby and his relaxation and nothing delighted him more than a tough civic or business problem. Like any newspaper publisher who takes sides on issues, Mr. Palmer was at times the target of much criticism as well as praise."

But quite a long time ago he learned to roll with the punches. He never lost his temper no matter how bitter the fight might be. As far as we have been able to observe here at the Gazette and Daily News, he never worried about anything."

"He used to become disturbed by lack of appreciation of some people but in recent years he even passed that by with the useful remark that maybe he expected too much. Mr. Palmer gave his best in life."

Possibly Most Powerful Atom Blast Set Off

By JACK LEFLER

ATOMIC TEST SITE, Nev. (AP)—A gigantic atomic explosion, a mightiest ever tested in the United States — shook entrenched Marines "like an earthquake" today and set fire to brush and trees on distant mountains.

It flared spectacularly over the nation's western half and its shock wave rumbled through communities more than 300 miles away. The Atomic Energy Commission announced several hours after the 4:40 a. m. shot that its energy was "well over" that of the previous biggest shot.

Despite its awesome power, the test director said fallout was light. This was due in part to the fact that the device was fired 1,500 feet above the desert floor while suspended from a balloon.

No estimate of the test weapon's power was given. Unofficial estimates place it at around three or four times that of the so-called nominal weapons that were dropped on the Japanese cities of Hiroshima and Nagasaki during World War II.

These had the energy of 20,000 tons of TNT.

ATOMIC TEST SITE, Nev. (AP)—A gigantic atomic explosion, a mightiest ever tested in the United States — shook entrenched Marines "like an earthquake" and set fire to brush and trees on distant mountains today.

The Atomic Energy Commission said the blast could have been the most powerful ever set off in the United States.

The mighty weapon shook the surrounding desert and blistered the breaking dawn with a binding flash.

The Marines were entrenched 5,700 yards from where the weapon was exploded beneath a balloon at an altitude of 1,500 feet.

In a telephone interview with the Associated Press, Brig. Gen. Harvey Tschirg, commander of the Marine brigade, said:

"It was pretty rough. Lots of dust. It shook us like an earthquake. I felt like I was on roller skates for a few seconds."

The general was in a trench 30 feet closer to ground zero than those of the 1,000 men in his command.

Gen. Tschirg said there were some cave-ins in the trenches but that they were not serious.

One Marine was buried by a cave-in. He is Pfc Gheodore Sturgis of St. Louis, Mo. It took 15 minutes to get him out. He was not hurt.

As the dirt began to cascade down upon him in his trench, he grabbed a buddy and was able to keep his head above the earth.

The AEC said today's bomb could have had a peak power exceeding the largest device exploded here previously. It added that the power possibly could have ranged slightly below the former big shot.

Veteran observers said the fireball this morning was more spectacular than any that they had ever seen.

The weapon, rated unofficially at between three and four times as big as the World War II atomic bombs which devastated the Japanese cities of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, was suspended from a balloon 1,000 feet in the air.

As the tremendous blast went off a wave of heat enveloped News Nob, 13 miles away.

It was followed by a terrific concussion and shockwaves which roared and groaned across the southern Nevada desert.

The explosion was the greatest and most spectacularly beautiful of the 51 test explosions run off here.

The fireball shined in green and red as it shot up through quickly rising, dirty black clouds.

A creamy, red wall of smoke spread across the desert around the stem of the mushroom.

Long Charges Warning of Hurricane Late

By JAMES MCLEAN

CAMERON, La. (AP)—A verbal storm brewed today in devastated southwest Louisiana after Sen. Russell Long (D-La.) charged the Weather Bureau was 12 hours off on its prediction the night before Hurricane Audrey ripped inland.

This "led the people to stay here," he said.

Long made a three-hour tour of ravaged Cameron Parish county where an estimated 700 persons died in the hurricane and its 20-foot tidal waves.

"The Weather Bureau made a mistake in not telling the people to get out the previous afternoon," Long said. "I want to know when the Weather Bureau discovered it was more than 12 hours wrong on when the hurricane would reach our coast, and what was done about it."

"I am going to find the answers," he said.

Sheriff O. B. Carter told Long: "A 10 o'clock forecast the night before said there was no reason for alarm, that Hurricane Audrey would not reach our coast until the next afternoon."

"The next morning we was to have evacuated 80 per cent of our women and children. We don't know where they are."

Carter said the Weather Bureau tried to whitewash the way it tracked the storm.

Hurricane forecaster Raymond Kraft of the Weather Bureau office in New Orleans commented: "We stand on what we said at the time. Our advisories speak for themselves."

In its 11 a. m. advisory of June 26, the day before the tragic hurricane struck the mainland, the Weather Bureau predicted the center would move inland late the next day, then added:

"However, due to the size of the hurricane, gales will start along the Louisiana coast tonight. Tides are rising and will reach five to eight feet. All persons in low-lying places should move to higher ground."

At 10 p. m. that night the advisory said the hurricane was 255 miles south of Lake Charles, or 200 miles off the coast, with gales extending out 200 miles.

Saratoga Storm Damage Over $30,000

A local source today estimated the wind and electrical storm damage at Saratoga early Tuesday night at over $30,000.

Practically every house and building in Saratoga suffered some damage and at least one was completely demolished. The Saratoga school was heavily damaged. However, no serious injuries were reported. Many trees were uprooted in Saratoga and in the Baird's Lake area and power and electrical lines were down many hours and communication with Saratoga was cut off several hours. This newspaper was unable to communicate with Saratoga Wednesday.

Some of the hardest hit homes were those of Walter Gathright Horace Arnold and Foster Cannon. Many houses on the lake road were damaged heavily.

There was some damage in the Columbus area also.

Hope Trio Escapes Serious Injury

Dr. Jud Martindale and two daughters narrowly escaped serious injury mid-afternoon yesterday in an automobile accident near Marfreesboro. They suffered only minor bruises.

Dr. Martindale, enroute to Narrows Lake with his young daughters, said he topped a hill and a slow car in front and approaching cars blocked his path. Trying to keep from hitting another vehicle the Martindale car overturned and skidded on its top barely bumping the slow moving auto in front.

The Hope car was badly damaged.

C.E. Palmer, Co-owner of The Star, Claimed by Death at Texarkana

Clyde Eber Palmer

Dies Suddenly While Enroute to Hospital

TEXARKANA, Tex. (AP)—Clyde Eber Palmer, Arkansas and Texas publisher who pioneered teletype-circuits for newspapers, died unexpectedly last night. He would have been 71 next month.

Palmer, who started his newspaper career here in 1909, published papers at Texarkana and Hot Springs, El Dorado and Magnolia, Ark. He also had interests in radio and television stations and in oil and real estate.

The value of Palmer's properties could be counted in the millions, although he apparently never made a public estimate himself. A New York interviewer once reported that Palmer said his holdings were worth $150,000,000, but the interviewer apparently was in error, or the publisher was jesting. Close associates could give no estimate, except to say "several millions."

An associate, J. Q. Mahaffey, editor of the Texarkana Gazette and Daily News, said:

"It is no exaggeration to say that Mr. Palmer was a business genius. Business was his hobby, his relaxation, and nothing delighted him more than a tough civic or business problem."

Mrs. Palmer said her husband became ill late Wednesday and his condition became suddenly worse last night. He was rushed to a hospital. En route, ambulance attendants administered oxygen but he was pronounced dead at 8 p. m., shortly after arrival at the hospital.

Palmer, who learned to fly after he was 70 years old, published the Texarkana, Tex., Gazette and Daily News, the El Dorado, Ark., Daily News and Evening Times, the Hot Springs, Ark., Sunlight Record and New Era and the Magnolia, Ark., Banner News. He was a partner in the Hope, Ark., Star and president of KCMC radio and television stations at Texarkana. He once had newspaper interests at Fort Smith, Jonesboro, Camden and Russellville, Ark.

In 1944, he established the Palmer Foundation, a philanthropic enterprise he headed as president at his death. The foundation financed research for the Golden Rule Reader, a modern reader for elementary schools. It was announced recently that a second Continued on Page Three

A Dream Clyde Palmer Never Forgot

This is for my partner of nearly 29 years — Clyde E. Palmer, who died suddenly last night in Texarkana.

In this day of organized thinking and push-button living Mr. Palmer stood out as a man of fundamental thought and original action. At the end of the trail, wealthy and nationally known, he was just as much "his own man" as when, a country boy from Iowa, he set out to make a place for himself in the world of two generations ago.

In recent years he and Mrs. Palmer set up the Palmer Foundation to revive an old-style series of textbooks. The latest newstory on this came from the American Book Co. no later than last Monday. Here are the opening paragraphs on our front page of July 1:

"NEW YORK (UP)—Teach our children character, without preaching to them."

"This old-fashioned formula, which influenced our parents and grandparents through the famous McGuffey readers, gets the modern treatment in the Golden Rule series of children's books."

Now Mr. Palmer was born at Spirit Lake, Iowa, in 1876. He moved to Texarkana in 1909. He set up the Palmer Foundation in 1944 — and the first series of modern McGuffey Readers was issued in 1956. That's a spread of 80 years. I was curious about something.

I asked Mr. Palmer in 1956: "Just when and where did you get the idea of 'doing over' those old-time McGuffey Readers?"

"I don't know," he replied — "I've had the idea always."

Eighty years from boyhood to wealth and fame — and a dream that he never forgot.

This explained to me — as it will to you — Mr. Palmer's policies as a newspaper publisher.

It explains his widely-publicized demand "For common honesty in government as well as in business."

It explains his belief that what a newspaper feels is worth editorializing on deserves the full support of the newspaper property — at whatever risk.

This is courage of the highest order — separating the lip servers from the men of action.

Most men have courage of a sort. But the highest courage is that of a man who risks wealth when he chooses to act.

And Mr. Palmer had it — as I know from our partnership of 29 years come next January.

Some Progress on Disarmament

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — The big bang—the explosion of nuclear weapons being tested—may still be heard on the Fourth of July a year from now.

The United States and Russia have made a little progress toward agreeing on an end to the tests and on disarmament. Both sides have made some concessions.

That's a long way from real final agreement. They're talking mostly about general principles now. The whole business may blow up when they get down to details.

This country is laying down conditions the Russians may refuse. And the Eisenhower administration itself seems divided on whether there should be agreement.

That probably explains in part why Harold Stassen, president of this country at the disarmament talks in London—has been so long getting to the point.

This step-by-step story shows where the two countries have shifted ground and where they are now.

This country has consistently argued any general agreement on disarmament must be accompanied by an inspection system in the United States and Russia to prevent cheating. The Russians had consistently opposed letting outsiders inside Russia.

At the Big Four summit meeting in Geneva in 1955, President Eisenhower—as a step towards reaching agreement on a full inspection system—said both countries should agree to inspection by each other from the air.

The Russians laughed at the idea of aerial inspection. But last Nov. 17 Premier Bulganin wrote to Eisenhower, agreeing to some sky inspection, and some ground inspectors that control points—like airports and railroads.

He linked these things with a reduction in the armed forces of the two countries. He said they should cut down to 2½ million men—each with an end to nuclear weapons production and testing.

But in January, the United States, going before the United Nations, laid down its position which remained the American position until recently. This was it:

First, an agreement to end the production of nuclear weapons. That would require an inspection system. After production definitely had stopped, there could be an agreement on ending nuclear tests. That, too, would require inspectors.

This country took notice of Bulganin's proposal for cutting the armed forces to 2½ million men but said that would require inspection too. In short, inspection all the way.

In March, the disarmament talks were resumed in London among the United States, Russia, Britain, France and Canada. Stassen talked for this country, but not much. The talks dawdled for

Brooklyn Bats Hold the Key, Says Hutch

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

CHICAGO (AP) — Brooklyn bats still hold the key to the World National League pennant chase, says Manager Fred Hutchinson, whose St. Louis Cardinals virtually have the lead with Cincinnati and Milwaukee.

"I have a hunch the race will go right down to the wire," said Hutchinson after the Cardinals split a double-header yesterday with the Cubs to retain second place. The Cards then left for home and the opening of a four-game series tonight with the leading Redlegs.

"It's one of the greatest races I've seen," he said. "These Dodger bats could break up the entire party, however."

On all sides.

On April 30 the Russian—elaborating on Bulganin's proposal of last November, which was a concession to Eisenhower's aerial inspection proposal—suggested some limited sky inspection of the United States and Russia.

Under the proposal the western half of the United States could be examined but only the eastern part of Siberia would be exposed to American photographers.

On June 14 Russia went further: it agreed, as part of a ban on testing nuclear weapons—4½ let foreign inspectors inside Russia. The Russians didn't go into details, so it's difficult to see whether this differed much from Bulganin's idea of last November on permitting inspectors in at airports and railroads. But this Russian move apparently forced a shift in the American position.

Now, reversing what it said in January, this country proposes stopping nuclear tests first—but with an inspection system—provided the Russians agree that sometime later there will be an end to weapons production. This would require inspectors.

The United States also suggests now—as part of a general disarmament plan—an immediate armed forces reduction to 2½ million men.

But Secretary of State Dulles a week ago made it clear that one agreement depends on another. And where that leads no one knows. To full American position hasn't been laid out yet. Nor has the full Russian position.

The disarmament talks still can blow up when the United States and Russia get down to talking on how they'd actually carry out anything they agreed to in principle.

Middlecoff, Stranahan Have Chance

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, (UP)

—American hopes of winning the British Open Golf championship dimmed today when Cary Middlecoff and Frank Stranahan could shoot no better than two-over-par 74's on the third round of the tournament.

Middlecoff, runnerup in the U.S. Open championship last month, and Stranahan were the only two Americans who qualified for the final two rounds of the tournament played today on the St. Andrews old course. Each went out in even par 36 and took 38 strokes coming home.

Middlecoff's 54-hole total was 217 strokes, while Stranahan had 219. Middlecoff, slender Memphis, Tenn., dentist, started the third round four strokes behind the leader, Eric Brown of Scotland. Stranahan, from Toledo, Ohio, was six strokes off the pace after yesterday's second round.

Several British Empire golfers finished the third round with low scores, making it unlikely that either York would duplicate Ben Hogan's 1953 feat of winning this tournament. Among the early third-round finishers, Tom Haliburton of Scotland shot a 66 and with 54-hole totals of 213. Bobby Locke of South Africa, who has won the tournament three times, took over the third-round lead when he fired a four-under-par 68 that gave him a total of 209. That dropped Middlecoff eight strokes off the pace and Stranahan 10 strokes behind. The 39-year-old Locke, British Open king in 1949, 1950 and 1952, went out in 32 and came back in 36.

The final day's play began in bright sunshine with a cool light breeze wafting over the ancient 6,900-yard course. A total of 40 golfers qualified for the final 36 holes.

Peter Thomson of Australia, seeking to win the British Open crown a fourth straight year, shot a third-round two-under-par 70 for a 54-hole aggregate of 212, putting him ahead of Haliburton and Middlecoff.

DOROTHY DIX

Divorcee Deserves Dates Despite Domestic Duties

Dear Dorothy Dix: I'm a disturbed divorcee of 24, the mother of two children. I'm torn between being a good mother and living a portion of life for myself. Whenever I go out I have a guilty feeling that I should be home then when I'm home I feel sorry for myself because I never go out. Would I be doing my youngsters an injustice if I went out occasionally? — ANN

Dear Ann: There's no earthly reason why you can't go out if your youngsters are well supervised. Mothers need recreation as well as anyone else.

Dear Dorothy Dix: My wife deserted me and our three children two years ago. I am planning to marry a fine woman, a widow with one daughter who I am sure will be a good mother to my youngsters. Should I let the children call her mother? — UNDECIDED

Dear UNDECIDED: Any woman who accepts the obligation imposed by three young children certainly deserves the courtesy, respect and honor of being called mother.

Dear Dorothy Dix: How does a person working on a night shift meet girls and conduct a courtship? I'm fed up with being single. But what chance do I have to meet a girl? There must be a large number of girls — telephone operators, nurses, waitresses — with night hours. Why can't some organization help us get together? Late afternoon dances or sight-seeing trips might be ideas. — NIGHT OWL

Dear Night Owl: I present your challenge and hope someone takes it up. Perhaps a man who's gone through the same experience and met with success will share his secret with us. I'll be happy to pass it on.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I know that petting with every boy you date is wrong, but how about a steady boy friend? Mine says since we go steady he has a right to demand petting. When I refuse he gets angry. — MIRIAM

Dear Miriam: It's difficult to convince girls with charmingly persuasive boy friends that surrender is the worst policy. You'll find the subject of petting discussed at length in my leaflet, "The Petting Problem, which you may have if you'll send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope. It will give you some arguments with which to back up your 'No!'"

Dear Dorothy Dix: I'm happily married and we have two male friends, also married. Whenever we're together they wink at me. I have never winked back or made any other sign of encouragement. — WANDA

Dear Wanda: Could be they're series of the reader was scheduled for immediate publication. Palmer was a native of Spirit Lake, Iowa. He came to Texarkana as manager of the old Texarkana Courier, which he purchased in 1911 and later sold. In 1923, after establishing newspapers in several Arkansas cities, he returned to Texarkana and bought the Gazette and Daily News.

He helped set up the first cooperative teletypewriter circuit in 1942—a process aimed at increasing production while reducing composing room costs. Such systems now are operated by the major wire services.

The teleprinter enables an operator at a central location to operate typesetting machines, linotypes, in a number of newspaper plants through the use of perforated tape, a leased wire and special devices.

The "Palmer Circuit" still is operating, serving newspapers at Texarkana and Hot Springs, El Dorado, DeQueen, Magnolia, Hope and Stuttgart, Ark.

He had been a member and chairman of several state commissions in Arkansas including the Farm and Tenancy Commission, and the Arkansas Centennial Commission which arranged the Arkansas exhibit at the New York World's Fair.

Palmer, who served as a private during the Spanish American War, was past president of the Texas Newspaper Publishers Association and was active in the Southern and American Newspaper Publishers associations and in activities of The Associated Press. He was educated in the schools of his native Spirit Lake and at the Fremont, Neb., Business College. In 1941, Subiaco College in Arkansas bestowed a doctor of literature degree.

Besides his widow, survivors include two daughters, Mrs. Walter E. Hussman, wife of the publisher of the Camden, Ark., News and Mrs. Alden Minnow, general manager of the Hot Springs newspaper.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete. Funeral services will be held at the Pine Street Presbyterian Church here at 10:30 a.m. Tomorrow in charge of the Rev. T. J. Wilbanks. Burial will be in Hillcrest Cemetery.

everything and he in turn expected everyone with whom he had dealings to do the same.

He did not expect the impossible from anyone but he could not bear laziness nor procrastination. C. E. Palmer never tried to impress anyone with himself or his material success. He had no respect for persons who threw their money away and by the same token he did not like those who wanted to ride free.

"Newspapers are great responsibilities. So are radio and television stations. They are instruments of great power. Mr. Palmer could have been a much more powerful man in this part of the country if he had chosen to use his mass communication media to promote himself rather than the communities in which they operate."

"Texarkana will miss the untiring energy and determined drive of C. E. Palmer and as one of his friends said last night, 'He died not only with his boots on but with his spurs as well.'"

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—The singing McGuire sisters, who failed to keep their first night's engagement at the Semi-centennial Exposition here, said yesterday they were ready to fulfill their $18,750 contract.

The girls were slated to begin a seven-day run Monday night but the performance was canceled when Christine failed to appear because of what her attorney said was a "strep throat infection."

Exposition Manager James Burge said the contract was beachhead when the trio did not appear for their opening performance. Burge said the contract was forfeited when they did not show up for

Definition of Hillbilly Singer Is Changed

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—The definition of a hillbilly vocalist used to be somebody who sings through his nose by ear for money. But today things are different.

There are so many country music compositions regularly entrenched in the national "Top Ten" lists of radio, jukeboxes and home recordings. From country music beginnings so many people have soared to great heights — Elvis Presley, But Boone, Tommy Sands, Rusty Draper, Tennessee Ernie, Eddy Arnold, Jimmy Dean.

The phenomenon of country music is of special interest to the CBS Radio network because tonight it begins playing most to the "Country Music Show."

It sent a sleuth down in the Blue Ridge country of Virginia to try to learn just what country music is. He found that:

Country music is commercially as durable as steel because it draws its vitality directly from the farmer, factory hand and small merchant.

The hillbilly performer doesn't depend on a professional songwriter for his material. He composes his own, even though he can't read or write a note of music. Of the 14 artists traveling with him and the show, only one has not composed any songs and only one other has composed as few as 10. The rest have created anywhere from 10 to 100 songs each.

He thinks through the words first, then picks out the music on his guitar or fiddle, and finally performs it for his tape recorder, or on a disc. He jets down the cords on paper to help him rehearse.

The exposition manager said he was forced to round up a new show and give refunds to everyone who asked. He also said $22,000 advertising for the McGuire show was lost.

The McGuire's attorney, Robert Martin, Wichita, insisted the girls were ready to perform. He claimed that no breach of contract occurs when a performer is unable to appear because of illness.

Dorothy brushed her hair back. "You weren't out there when I yelled at your mother. I told her now he leaned back against the off on a number of counts. All counter edge to listen to what afternoon, Garde, she'd been pick. Dorothy had to say. He liked this in' at Carl and me. Our friends—beautiful girl whom his brother and your new friends—our had married—she sometimes clothes and your clothes. And then could be a little vulgar, to give when you came up the hill with his mother's opinion of Dorothy that nice girl—and she is nice, fair consideration—but she was always beautiful, whether laughing, talking, in repose, angry or happy—and she also was as big-hearted as any woman could be. Garde liked her.

"I told her to let you boys alone! Personally, I'd much rather couldn't do better than that Nan, but if you like the other sister better—why, that's your business. And I guess you do like her better from the way your mother criticizes her. And you, why, she even takes wrong the way you've been watering the tree that girl planted—for spite, your mother says. Why she even claims this Valley buried something—hid it, you know—when she planted those trees Carl told her she watched too many TV shows."

Garde straightened, stiffened; his head went up alertly. Dorothy noticed this. "What's wrong?"

He shook his head, then turned to pick up his tray. "Nothing. Let's take these out. Mother will want to come in and put dinner on the table. And—look, Sis, don't worry about her. As I said, Carl and I understand her—just about as well as you do."

His muscles fairly ached to get up and dig around that ailing tree. He wanted to dig and find nothing—or—even—to find whatever it was that Valley had buried.

And at the same time, he dreaded doing just that—for what he might find.

He had no reason at all to connect his mother's story with the murder of Ben Laurent, but he did connect the two things. If Valley had buried something connected with the murder, her burying it implied that its discovery would hurt or perhaps convict someone, and therein lay the matter of his dream.

Throughout the evening, he kept this matter in his mind; it lay there like a film, a scum, as he talked to his guests at dinner, then suggested a drive around town before dark.

He took Carl and Dorothy to the hospital and showed them around. They waited while he checked on the Rinsaw child and another patient, then went with him to see his office. Carl expressed a mechanical mind's delight in all the gadgets. Dorothy smoothed her hand over the wood paneling and sat experimentally upon the chair.

They went home then, and after another hour of talk they all went to bed. Garde to his room where he could—and did—think unhindered, where all the thoughts that he'd held netted during the evening could be released to swarm through his mind.

His methodical mind wet back over the things water Nan had told him during the afternoon, arranging the story, the facts, then he moved on to what his mother had said—and came again to protest that this claim should be made upon him to be the one, perhaps to set Kirt Lillard free

Of course, he hadn't seen Valley either.

But, anyway, it was both a relief and a pleasure, on Thursday, to answer his phone and hear Nan's voice, cool, but friendly, in his ear.

"Well, hello!" he said with enthusiasm. "I'm glad you called."

"Are you Garde I expect you are busy."

He looked down at the cards of patients still to be seen. "I can stand a break."

"I'll make it short," Nan promised. Her manner of almost boyish brusqueness came through the phone; he could see color creep into her cheeks and one hand tugging at a lock of her hair. "The gang is cooking up a party at the club for tomorrow night. It's a spur of the moment thing. We're trying to get enough who think they'll come to make it a success—not only financially, but you know how dead a dance is with three people on the floor. So... Oh, I haven't told you. Bill Marquart found out that we could get his big-name band for that one evening between a big debutante party he's playing for in St. Louis and a engagement in Kan-

Woman Scalped by Propeller Shaft

SAN PABLO, Calif. (AP)—Mrs. Lucretia Galbraith's scalp was torn from her head after her long dark hair was caught in a cabin cruiser's propeller shaft yesterday.

in an ambulance to Brookside Hospital in this San Francisco Bay city.

Surgeons sent Deputy Sheriff Lester Clark racing back to the boat harbor to cut free the scalp skin, tightly tangled by hair to the shaft.

Clark rushed back with the scalp and surgeons stitched it on Mrs. Galbraith's head. They hope the operation will result in a successful healing and restoration of scalp and hair.

Mrs. Galbraith, a bookkeeper, caught her hair in the shaft as she inspected bilgeste 30-foot cruiser. T. R. Henry of San Francisco, piloting the boat, heard her scream as he backed down the boat.

He stopped the engine, cut Mrs. Galbraith free, then ran the boat to a dock and called an ambulance.

"Get me to the hospital quick," she pleaded. "And please keep my eyes covered. I feel much better with my eyes covered." The hospital reported her condition is satisfactory.

Beauty in motion—Chevrolet Bel Air Sport Sedan with Body by Fisher.

Here's why Chevy's best showroom is the road!

Because Chevrolet's sleek good looks, its advanced features, are only part of the story. The big bonus is its remarkable roadability, the crisp precision handling that has posted an entirely new standard for cars in every price class. You can't read about that... but you can feel it in one minute on the road! Good drivers know roadability is the single thing that means more driving satisfaction for more thousands of miles than anything else. More safety, too, for it grants greater stability on curves, greater traction on wet roads, better "bite" under hard braking, more accurate steering. There are reasons for all this, of course: Chevrolet's balanced weight distribution that takes excessive loads off the front wheels, the wide stance of outrigger rear springs, Ball-Race steering, spherical-joint front suspension. Sure, you can admire the sculptured lines in the showroom. But Chevy's a car specifically designed for beautiful motion—you have to travel in this one to know just how terrific it is. Try it, this week!

SOURCE OF OUR FREEDOM

Nearly two centuries ago in the fateful course of human events Liberty was born. With justifiable pride we declared our Independence... Liberty and the rights of all men. The spiritual aspect of the proposition of freedom, equality and justice for all was fundamental in the development of these new ideas. Liberty loving fathers, possessed of unyielding faith and vital religious convictions supplied the genius. Before a government could be founded on the brotherhood of man... there had to be the Fatherhood of God. Then let us preserve this freedom through eternal vigilance, unceasing prayer and unflinching faith. Independence!!!... the Fourth of July. Let us ever remember the source of our freedom... The Book. Sunday School Lesson

By William E. Gilroy, D. D.

One of the strange contrasts in history is between the high position of place, influence and power held by women in spite of the great limitations, legal and social, upon them that have prevailed very widely. Many limitations have been modified, or abolished only in recent years.

Conspicuous examples come to mind, both ancient and modern; Cleopatra, the Queen of Shob, Elizabeth of England, Catherine of Russia, and others among the notables.

In other areas of service to humanity, women like Elizabeth Fry and Florence Nightingale, the one in prison reform, the other in hospital service, achieved what they did against seemingly impossible opposition and obstacles.

Conspicuous examples in the field of religion have not been so evident. Madame Blavatsky was a powerful figure in Theosophy. And in a different way, Mary Baker Eddy has an amazing place as the founder of Christian Science. But in the more conventional and orthodox areas of religion, while the influence of women has been great, and there have been eminent women saints, the places of power and leadership have been almost universally occupied by men.

It is only comparatively recently, and only in the more liberal denominations, that women have been admitted to the ordained ministry.

But in the long history of the virtual subjugation of women, or their relegation to a comparatively inferior position, a notable exception is found in the high place accorded woman.

It is the history of the Jewish people, emphasized in the pages of the Old Testament. It is strange that there has not been more attention paid to that phase of Jewish life.

The record shines out in the place and greatness of the women of the Bible, all the way back into primitive times.

Miriam, the Prophetess, elder sister, and rescuer, of the baby Moses (Exodus 2:1-10), stands out in leadership beside her brother Moses, and Aaron. She is the poet and singer, enriching her song with the dance and the timbrel.

Outstanding among Old Testament women, at least in ability and force of character, is Deborah, who in the time of the Judges became Israel's unofficial leader, an unrecognized queen and judge, whose famous palm tree came. Her forcefulness was so great that even Barak, the warrior, wouldn't go against Israel's enemies unless Deborah went with him. What a woman!

But even more impressive than (Judges 4:5) became the judge, the outstanding women of the Old Testament is the portrayal in its pages of women in home and family life. I have just been reading the recent novel, "Annie Boleyn," based on the story of one of the wives whom Henry the Eighth beheaded.

I thought of the contrast between the British just in much of the background of that story and the conception of romantic love in the Jewish life of the Old Testament, a man, Jacob, spending seven years in servitude out of love for a woman, for example, and in general romance, tenderness and devotion in the relations between man and woman.

It is emphasized in the remarkable book, the Song of Songs. Whether that book be a collection of ancient love poems or a book of more spiritual import in its symbolism, the very fact that the book is what it is only emphasizes that quality of romance in contrast with the shallow and degraded uses of the word "love" so common today.

Fabulous Oil Millionaire Dies in Texas

HOUSTON, Tex., (AP)—Hugh Roy Cullen, 78, oilman who earmarked over 160 million dollars for philanthropy after building a tremendous fortune with a pet theory, died last night.

He had been ill for three months. Cullen struck many a gushing oil well by drilling deeper in areas major companies and other successful independent operators had abandoned.

Before his death he wrote checks for nearly 60 million dollars in gifts. He also pledged the Cullen Foundation over 100 million based on future income from oil properties. The University of Houston, the greatest beneficiary, has received an estimated 30 million dollars.

Death came a day after the outspoken oilman's 76th birthday and 103 days after he was admitted to Hermann Hospital, one of many medical institutions to benefit from his gifts.

Mrs. Cullen, four daughters, all but one of 15 grandchildren, the family physician and three nurses were in the room.

Problem Is What to Do With Them
By THOMAS P. WHITNEY

If the practices of Stalin still prevailed in the Soviet Union, V. M. Molotov, Georgi Malenkov, Lazar Kaganovich and Dmitri Shepilov would be waiting for the firing squad. Instead their fate hangs in the balance.

Even foxxy and tough Nikita Khrushchev, who so adroitly and swiftly engineered their ruin, probably doesn't know exactly what to do with them now.

Williams Is Now Showing His Years

By JOE REICHLER
NEW YORK (AP) — Ted Williams, despite his lofty batting average, is finally beginning to show his years.

The Boston Red Sox slugger, generally regarded as baseball's best hitter during the past two decades, is not as feared by opposing pitchers as he used to be. "Something tells me I shouldn't say this," a New York Yankee pitcher remarked "because it's a gun to make me eat my words before the day is over. But if you ask me I think Ted has lost something."

"Sure he's still a great hitter, would be just like the big son-of-bitch he doesn't seem to have that old snap in his swing any more. At least he hasn't shown me that old buggy-whip swing of his. I think he knows it too. He doesn't appear to be as confident at the plate as he used to be. He takes more good pitches now and he even swings at some bad ones too. He doesn't seem to be too sure of himself."

"Maybe I'm wrong about him but I feel more confident when he comes up to bat. At least I don't get a nervous feeling any more when he strides up to the plate. There was a time when I'd be happy to settle for a single or double. Now I feel I've got a 50-50 chance against him."

Williams, 38, did not distinguish himself at the plate as the Yankees and Red Sox divide their holly double-header. He drew a walk in the first game, but failed to hit the ball out of the infield in his three other turns at bat against Bobby Shantz, Boston.

Obviously tired, Ted was given a rest in the second game but he turned up as a pinch hitter in the fifth against Don Larsen and went out on a high pop foul. The Yankees won 4-1.

Wimbledon Is All-American Tournament

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — The All-American women's singles final at the Wimbledon Lawn Tennis Championships Saturday may turn on the odd factor — "serving nerves."

Both Althea Gibson of New York and Darlene Hard of Montebello, Calif., can whip the ball over the net with almost masculine power.

They did just that yesterday to reach the final. Miss Gibson easily defeated the surprising British youngster, 16-year-old Christine Truman, 6-1, 6-1. Miss Hard handled Mrs. Dorothy Heade Knodel, Forest Hills, N. Y., with similar ease.

But these two finalists sometimes dish up incredible double faults at key points in a match. Darlene gets the shakes more often than Althea. In fact, the 21-year-old Californian has a reputation for throwing games away with her wobbly service just when she seems to have a little wrapped up.

Miss Gibson has been in trouble several times during Wimbledon for foot-faults. That is something capable of throwing the New Yorker off her game if she gets called too often in a match.

Nashville Owns Lead in Southern

By The Associated Press

Nashville owned the Southern Association lead today, plus title races while the Vol front office waved away antidotes to the penicillin fever which brought an overflow crowd of 7,122 fans to the July 4 Sulphur Dell fireworks.

The fans saw plenty of batting pyrotechnics as the Vols divided a doubleheader with Birmingham, winning the short opener 8-3 and losing the nightcap 14-6. The pennant contenders treated the big turnout to a 52-hit display.

The split, coupled with Atlanta's double setback in Chattanooga, left Nashville a game ahead of the Crackers in the tense battle for the lead. Chattanooga blanked Atlanta 9-0 in the opener behind squeezed past the Crackers 5-4 in the second game.

Memphis shouldered ahead of Birmingham into third place by .002 points with a 5-0 and 7-2 sweep over Mobile, and Little Rock took a pair from New Orleans 9-4 and 0-1.

Nashville, already the top hitting and fielding club in the circuit announced the acquisition of right-handers Russ Meyer and John Mackinson to bolster their only below-average department.

Many Teams Disputing Old July 4 Maxiom

By JOHN GRIFFIN
United Press Sports Writer
world series.

That's the prediction today from baseball's most famous "crystal ball" — the old axiom that the teams leading the major leagues on the Fourth of July will win the pennants. You can't laugh it off as a superstition either, because the whammy's getting on a stringer in recent years.

Since the modern era started in baseball in 1901, the old adage has come true 70 times in 112 races — an average of about five out of eight. But in the last five years it's come true nine out of 10 times. The only July 4 leader in that span to miff the "pennant" was last year's Milwaukee Braves.

So it's the Redlegs by a margin of just four percentage points over the surprising St. Louis Cardinals, and the Yankees by a solid three games over the Chicago White Sox with the rest "way back now."

The odds-makers, incidentally, disagree with the "crystal ball." In their July 4 rundown on the pennant races, they go along with the Yankees as 1-4 choices to cop the American League flag but they still like either Milwaukee or Brooklyn at 2-1 in the National with Cincinnati and St. Louis each 4-1. Cincinnati clug to the top rug in the N. L. on the holiday despite a 10-7 slugfest loss to Milwaukee in a single game. The Cards fumbled a chance to take first place at the milestone by losing the first game of a twin bill to Chicago, 7-6, before winning 4-3. Brooklyn also split, losing to Pittsburgh 5-1 before winning 8-2, but Philadelphia swept the Giants, 2-1 and 6-2.

The Yankee protected their A. L. Margin by winning 4-1, but Philadelphia swept the Giants, 2-1 and 6-2. The Yankees protected their margin by winning 4-1, after losing 3-2. The White Sox blew 5-4 decision to Kansas City before winning 4-3. Cleveland downed Detroit, 2-1, but then lost 4-3 in a single game. Baltimore beat Washington, 3-2 in 11 innings.

The Braves had 14 hits, the Redlegs 17 as they shot off more firecrackers in one game than most of the teams did in two. Hank Aaron slammed his 26th homer, the majors' best, plus two doubles and Ed Mathews hit his 17th, while George Crowe had five straight hits for the Reds, including two homers, and drove in six runs, including two homers, and drove in six runs. The Braves pulled in with four tallies in the eighth, two on Pitcher Raul Sanchez' wild throw on a pickoff.

Don Larsen's five-hitter, marred only by Mickey Vernon's homer, gave the Yankees their second-game win — the second straight complete game win for the "perfect game" hero who got off to a sour start this year. Vernon hit another homer in the first game — a pinch-hit, two-out, two-run job in the ninth inning off Bob Gern to snatch victory from defeat.

The A's beat the White Sox in the pre-dawn half of their morning afternoon twin bill by rallying for five runs in the last of the ninth, the last two on Gus Zernial's bloop single down the right field line. The Sox made sure of the second with 15 hits as Bob Kean scattered 11 A's hits to win.
